Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 04 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Becoming increasingly cloudy with outbreaks of rain.

Today:
Some bright spells are possible early on, but also some patches of fog and low cloud. Cloud increasing from the south through the morning as outbreaks of rain spread in, easing later. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
A cloudy evening with a few outbreaks of rain and drizzle. Becoming predominantly dry after midnight but remaining rather cloudy. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Friday:
A rather cloudy start with some patchy mist and fog. This slowly clearing to leave a largely dry day with sunny spells and light winds. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cloudy Saturday with rain developing. Rain possibly turning to snow overnight, as it becomes markedly colder, before gradually easing on Sunday. Very cold and cloudy Monday but largely dry.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.